for

families of individuals with Williams syndrome in Japan

The concept of the music academy for special learners originated in Lenox, Massachusetts at a music camp for individuals with Williams syndrome that began in 1994. At Berkshire Hills Music Academy, our students' passion for music unlocks their talents and helps them to reach their full potential. Whether they are polished performers or just want to learn to play an instrument, our program will give them the motivation to learn the necessary skills to become independent adults while doing something they love.
